R: text from LM Nada and KOS:

- Go and work with the Resurrection flame and spread that light like 10Trillion suns – share it with the world
- how this is related to the changes in our sun? Rama has been told by Faction 3 White Knights – the reason they are spraying stuff in the skies – aerosol sprays – is to hid the ships & make people sick

- These are chem trails – and they will be held accountable
  - The Great Central sun, Helios and Vesta who are the god parents of Sol - all these connections bring in the light – the scientists don't know what is going on –
    - it's about hyper-dimensional physics – Richard Hoagland and Nassim Haramein know about this – space is not empty but is full of energy-
    - the transformation of the sun in this system is the ignition key for this solar system – it's about mono atomic gold which is produced from our sun Sol; the scientists know about this, cannot talk
    - Blaze the Violet Fire !
  - What is being talked about more and more: clouds are not really colds – when the sun shines through them, can see a rainbow some of the time – it's the oily stuff in the atmosphere and all sorts are helping clean it up
    - people like the Faction 2 ones cannot talk to this; they were deep down the rabbit hole of the black budgets: when you join the agency, you remain with the agency as one aspect of the story of Valerie Plame, Joe Wilson tells us
    - this story is about Mother's wayward children Enki, Enlil, Lilith, etc
- R: why to this day do we still have US troops sitting in Iraq close to the green zone?
- and they are still in Afghanistan

T: A good thing from Drumpf: he ordered them to be gone by 1st – a good thing.

- We have interventions – and no dates

R: KOS said to watch the movie Risen; it's about a Roman centurian – Emperor Caesar was in charge when Aruhabbi was supposedly crucified – Risen is about a seasoned, hardened criminal of the Roman legions – goes to the cave and sees the shroud – he 'woke up' and became a follower

- he was at the bottom of the cross, and ordered to –
  - However there were no crosses as portrayed in movies: only large tree trunks and people were nailed through the wrists to that tree – the two thieves were wrapped around the tree
- Aruhabbi, a disciple of Jeshu, was taken: he was the spitting image of Jeshu and was taken while Jeshu, Mary, Mother Mary and the child escaped
  - we are all Christs, living beings with the christed energy and we recognize more and more who we are

March 31, 2021

As reports of UFOs become more commonplace, a key factor in removing ridicule from mainstream reporting is the accurate reporting of data and deciphering patterns from the sightings. This is the role Cheryl Costa takes as an investigative journalist and UFO researcher who gives us an overall view of hot spots and the best times to spot them. For over twenty years, she has kept a growing database of UFO sightings; documenting date, time, location, and shapes of UFOs. In this episode she shares the fruits of her research, pinpointing patterns and trends. The analysis of the data shows that the UFO phenomena is much bigger than mainstream media lets on. But all of that is about to change.

AUDIO: On Contact: Emergence of the global police state

2021-04-03

VIDEO: <https://www.rt.com/shows/on-contact/519982-emergence-global-police-state/>

PODCAST: <https://soundcloud.com/rttv/on-contact-emergence-of-the-global-police-state>

On the show this week, Chris Hedges discusses the emergence of the global police state with Professor William I. Robinson. Robinson's new book, The Global Police State, uses shocking data to reveal how far capitalism has become a system of repression. He argues the emerging megacities of the world are becoming the battlegrounds where the excluded and the oppressed face off against the global police state.

Robinson is Professor of Sociology, Global Studies, and Latin American Studies, at the University of California-Santa Barbara. Among his many award-winning books are Global Capitalism and the Crisis of Humanity (CUP, 2014) and We Will Not Be Silenced (Pluto, 2017).

Chris Hedges: Welcome to On Contact. Today we discuss the emergence of the global police state with Professor William Robinson.

William I. Robinson: 2001 of course was a turning point, the events of 2001 because they legitimated this much more sweeping militarization of the global economy and society and really moved us fully into a global war economy and we're still, of course, in that global war economy but the Pentagon budget increased between 1998 and 2011 by 98%, it nearly doubled and worldwide official government spending, military spending increased by 50% between 2006 and 2015. Of course that includes China we were just talking about China, currently official spending is moving towards $3 trillion which is more than three percent of the whole global world product but that doesn't include secret budgets, it doesn't include police budgets, it doesn't include homeland secure--so-called homeland security budgets, when you do that my calculation is that just this military and repression spending is five to six percent of the entire global economy.

On this episode of Going Underground, we speak to Kevin MacDonald, Oscar-winning director of the film 'The Mauritanian' and Nancy Hollander, attorney at FBD Law and the lawyer of Mohamedou Ould Slahi, the man on whom the film is based.

Mohamedou Ould Slahi was held in the infamous Guantanamo Bay prison camp without charge from 2002 until 2016. The interview covers the many tragedies that occurred since he became a target for the United States, including CIA-backed torture via the notorious 'extraordinary rendition program,' the many episodes of torture that occurred at Gitmo, the Obama administration's battle to keep Ould Slahi in prison despite there being no charges against him, and the pressure applied to Hollander for simply being his lawyer.

*There's a lot of noise in the atmosphere
That I don't need to hear.
As I'm busy creating a life I love,
I focus on what I hold dear.*

Hola Initiates!

Can you feel it comin'? When Mercury enters Aries on Saturday, we're going to have the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Lilith, Chiron, and Eris all in the sign of cardinal fire! It will be squaring the Moon and joining Pluto (probably with a message telling him to back down and let go) in Capricorn. It has been said that all the ancient myths came from the elders telling the stories they saw being played out in the night sky. If that's the case, we are writing some dramatic new myths for future generations to learn from. The question is, what exactly will future generations learn from what we do now?

Hopefully, they will learn that love conquers fear, that light illuminates and diminishes darkness, and that life triumphs over the temporary death of third-dimensional forms and structures. And how will they learn this? They will learn this from the words and deeds that we speak and take today. All this Aries fire is confident that it can burn down the old and build something better. This task is not for everyone. Thus the old saying "If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen" may apply to some.

The kitchen symbolizes alchemy. Not all are alchemists. Not all are willing to use the stove and the oven and combine various ingredients to either nurture and strengthen or poison and destroy. I hope that you are an alchemist and that you enter the kitchen, you mix it up, you trust yourself, and together we offer up an amazing future to our children and their children. If that means burning down the house, well, the house wasn't good enough for our children.

Once again, I forgot to mention this week's song! See if you can guess it from the chorus: "You've got to know when to hold 'em, know when to fold 'em, know when to walk away, know when to run." If you guessed Kenny Rogers' "The Gambler," you guessed right! Of course, we've been riding through the old "wild west" and listening to some good 'ol country tunes, but I still feel like it fits the energetics of this week. While gambling "falls" under Leo and the 5th house in astrology, we all need to gamble with life whenever we start something new. Having the Sun, Venus, Chiron, Lilith, Eris, and soon Mercury in Aries, the sign of new beginnings and spontaneous new desires emerging, it's time to take the gamble!

And that leads me to the second song for this week's (month's) energy: "Burning Down the House." It's time to trust that we are strong enough, smart enough, and powerful enough to build a better house out of the ashes of the old. That sometimes, fire needs to torch the existing structures to clean the slate and start over from scratch. If any sign is gonna do it, it's Aries, so let the timid beware, the full Moon in Libra (peace and harmony) has given way to Scorpio (death and release of the past). Both Aries and Scorpio are ruled by Mars, the warrior, symbolizing the bravery and courage we need to summon up to pull this off.

Of course, there will always be reasons and people, fears, and doubts that need to be overcome. These are part and parcel of any new beginning (or initiation, for that matter). Will we (you) be stopped? Will you trust your gut and follow your heart or be smothered, bound, and chained? "Nothing ventured, nothing gained" is an old saying that Aries (as well as Leo, Sag, and a couple of other signs) will totally relate to. And yes, you can bet some fireworks are gonna fly as Lilith and Eris join forces to combat (square) the old power brokers (Pluto in Capricorn). Let's remember that what falls apart comes together again, but in a new, hopefully, more enlightened, way. Bring it on!

PS: Finally, I'll mention that we may not be hearing of all the protests, changes, challenges, and hero/heroines out there due to all the censoring that is going on. One question worth pondering is what paradigm social media and MSM are perpetrating.

Why is it so hard to break free from the material reality we are locked into, as we perceive it? The default mode network within our brain, a recent discovery with ancient implications, locks our minds into material reality and blocks access to spirituality and alternate planes of consciousness. The key to breaking free of this ancient matrix may be found with the careful use of psychedelics. Studies show that we can regulate this default mode network with meditation and exercise. But plant medicines may offer the breakthrough we need to shut down the predictive coding embedded within our brains. This would help us release the old stories that we impose upon new situations we encounter and help us to perceive the world in more beneficial ways.

Cheryl Ann Costa is and has been many things — an airman, submarine sailor, coast-to-coast talk radio host, television show co-host, playwright, author, filmmaker, coven priest, co-owner of a fabric shop and an engineer at a major Fortune 500 company.

She was also, at one time, a man.

'I am male, female, one, neither,' Costa said.

Costa addressed 40 audience members on Wednesday in Hendricks Chapel with an informal two-hour lecture, consisting of a PowerPoint presentation and a Q-and-A session about her thoughts on gender, sex and spirituality.

Costa is a self-described 'crazy yogi.' A yogi is a practitioner of various spiritual beliefs that often relates to meditation.

'(Yogis) are at the bleeding edge of spiritual exploration – like a research scientist,' she said.

Costa began her PowerPoint with three questions: who are you, what are you and what do you want. She pointed to an audience member and asked, 'Who are you?' A voice replied with a name. Costa said names are constricting because they are given by parents. She pointed to another audience members and asked, 'What are you?' Another voice said 'human.' Even the term 'human' is limiting, Costa said.

'That's like calling yourself a Volkswagen. Or a Toyota – I can't stop,' she joked, referring to Toyota's recent recalls.

A central pull of her presentation concerned the difference between sex and gender, two words that are not interchangeable. Concepts like these 'lock you down,' she said. Costa went on to mention scientific discoveries about animal gender and statistics about lesbian, gay and transsexual.

'I have those that say, 'What the hell is a Buddhist yogi going to tell me about sex and gender?' Costa said. 'I think the biggest thing is to keep the concept that sex are your body parts, gender is what society says you are, and the spirit side of it says you are not your body and you are the immortal part inside of your body. That's the message that you take away from here – stop believing that you are your body.'

Spirituality is outside the constricting concepts of sex and gender, she said. The spirit is the part that you can't touch. She encouraged the audience to 'let go of human existence' and delved into her beliefs about reincarnation. Costa went on to describe the hierarchy of beings and realms in Buddhism and the process of enlightenment.

'We've all lived in different realms,' she said. 'We've all lived in different dimensions.'

Costa also spoke about her clairvoyant abilities. She recalled seeing her first ghost at her Uncle Nick's funeral. She described this special trait as being 'aware of a larger world around' her.

'If you have unfinished business, take care of it now,' she said. 'It will bind you here on earth.'

Jannae Lehman, secretary of Student Pagan Information Relations and Learning, the pagan student organization partly responsible for the event, said she hoped people would leave with a more open mind.

'She's Buddhist and she's also pagan, so she kind of touches everybody,' said Lehman, a senior stage management major. 'I mean, how often do you get to talk to a transgender Buddhist nun that has lived the life she has?'

Laura Mateya, a junior environmental studies major, said she took away one particularly important message from the lecture.

'I was very humbled by how much she's been through and how open she was to help us understand,' she said. 'It's OK to be who you are.'

2021 -04-02 Good News: Bill Gates' Geoengineering Plot To Block The Sun Is Scrapped...

<https://stillnessinthestorm.com/2021/04/good-news-bill-gates-geoengineering-plot-to-block-the-sun-is-scrapped/>

By Stillness in the Storm

(Steve Watson) An effort to dim the sun to stop global warming has been scrapped by the Swedish Space Agency, who announced that the program, funded by Bill Gates, has 'divided the scientific community' and will therefore not be carried out.

by Steve Watson, April 2nd, 2021

The Swedish Space Corporation (SSC) released a statement saying that the Stratospheric Controlled Perturbation Experiment (SCoPEX), which also had secured Harvard funding, will not go ahead as planned in June.

"SSC has had dialogues this spring with both leading experts on geoengineering and with other stakeholders, as well as with the SCoPEX Advisory Board," the statement reads, adding "As a result of these dialogues and in agreement with Harvard, SSC has decided not to conduct the technical test flight planned for this summer."

It also notes that "The scientific community is divided regarding geoengineering, including any related technology tests such as the planned technical balloon test flight from Esrange this summer."

The Gates funded idea would have seen the release of calcium carbonate, essentially chalk dust, into the atmosphere from a high-altitude balloon to observe the effect it has on sunlight reaching the planet surface.

The ultimate goal of the study was to reduce the temperature on the planet in an effort to stave off global warming.

However, not surprisingly, the notion of blocking out the Sun proved somewhat unpopular, with environmental groups warning of potential "catastrophic consequences."

The Saami Council, an advocate group for Sweden's indigenous population, warned that the Gates experiment "essentially attempts to mimic volcanic eruptions by continuously spewing the sky with sun-dimming particles."

The group also pointed out that SCoPEX could have "irreversible sociopolitical effects" and would do nothing to reduce Carbon emissions, which are touted as the leading cause of climate change.

Essentially, the whole idea comes off as a weird vampirish effort to starve the planet of sunlight, the driver of all life, with little scientific logic behind it at all.

Bill Gates, who is flogging a book about climate change, has poured millions into geoengineering, funnelling at least \$4.6 million to the lead researcher on SCoPEX, Harvard applied physics scientist David Keith.

Gates has repeatedly lauded the notion of dimming the Sun, notably during a Ted Talk in 2010:

<https://youtu.be/JaF-fq2Zn7I>

Many have connected SCoPEX research into the use of stratospheric aerosols for geoengineering with so called 'chemtrails', suggesting that a spraying program has been ongoing in secret for years.

While the project was given a red light by Sweden, it doesn't mean it is going away.

David Keith told Reuters that it is only "a setback," and suggested the project could move to the US, where the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering and Medicine recently published a report calling for $100-200 million to be pumped into solar geoengineering over the next five years.

PODCAST: <https://soundcloud.com/rttv/on-contact-emergence-of-the-global-police-state>

Chris Hedges: Welcome to On Contact. Today we discuss the emergence of the global police state with Professor William Robinson.

William I. Robinson: 2001 of course was a turning point, the events of 2001 because they legitimated this much more sweeping militarization of the global economy and society and really moved us fully into a global war economy and we're still, of course, in that global war economy but the Pentagon budget increased between 1998 and 2011 by 98%, it nearly doubled and worldwide official government spending, military spending increased by 50% between 2006 and 2015. Of course that includes China; we were just talking about China - currently official spending is moving towards $3 trillion which is more than three percent of the whole global world product but that doesn't include secret budgets, it doesn't include police budgets, it doesn't include homeland security--so-called homeland security budgets. When you do that, my calculation is that just this military and repression spending is five to six percent of the entire global economy.

CH: By 2018, 17 global financial conglomerates, collectively managed $15.1 trillion, more than half the GDP of the entire planet. The richest one percent, led by thirty-six million millionaires and two thousand four hundred billionaires, controlled more than half of the world's wealth while the bottom eighty percent was left to survive on 4.5% of the global wealth. The steady marginalization of most of the world's populations, tossed aside by corporate capitalism as disposable, has created a permanent underclass with no real prospect of advancement. As inequality mounts, our corporate rulers are creating ever more sophisticated tools of repression including wholesale surveillance, the world's largest prison system in the United States, the persecution of immigrants and refugees, a rigged judicial system, crippling debt peonage, and militarized police to exert iron control over those global capitalists consider disposable.

Joining me to discuss the new global dystopia is William Robinson, professor of sociology, global studies, and Latin American studies at the University of California Santa Barbara and the author of The Global Police State. So at the beginning of the book, you talk--you list three kind of elements to the rise of this global police state which I want you to speak about. You talk about the omnipresent systems of mass social control, repression and warfare promoted by the ruling groups to contain the real and potential rebellion of the global working class, and surplus humanity. Can you lay that out for us?

WR: Sure. Yeah. Well, the starting point for talking about global police state is the crisis of global capitalism. Now I wrote this book before the pandemic but the point here is that global capitalism was already facing an acute crisis; the pandemic only made it worse. The crisis is multi-dimensional: I know it's ecological; it's a social crisis of survival for some 3.5 to 4 billion people but specifically in order to put it--place in context these three dimensions of global police state, we want to look at two dimensions of the crisis which is structural: chronic stagnation in the global economy, and secondly, a political crisis of state legitimacy and of capitalist hegemony. And capitalist states around the world have been unable to cope with this crisis even before the pandemic, and the pandemic has exposed these states as instruments of wealth and corruption and are pushing these states to intensify global police state.

For me this concept of global police state is critical to understanding where we're at in 2020, and the nature of global capitalism and those three dimensions you were asking me about is, first of all, we're seeing the extension and the deepening of transnational systems of repression, social control, and warfare to contain surplus humanity and the global working class which is experiencing complete admiseration and destabilization. The second dimension is in the face of chronic stagnation in the global economy what more technically we call 'over accumulation' we-- the global police state pushes forward what I termed in the book 'militarized accumulation' and 'accumulation by repression' which is to say that global police state is immensely profitable and at a time when there are not other outlets for capitalists to continue to make profits, and the third dimension of global police state is that we're moving towards political systems that can be called 21st Century fascism.

Now these three dimensions in of--in and of themselves are not necessarily novel but they can't be separated from one another, and we need to see how the three are intertwined in new ways in the context of global police state that signal this extremely dangerous phase in global capitalism with its--with its severe crisis as the backdrop as the world descends into this repressive totality. So, I mean, I have an incredible amount of data and more contextualization but that, in a nutshell, is what I'm getting at with global police states.

CH: What you're really positing in the book is that the consolidation of power by the global capitalist elite is not going to be addressed, given the structure--the governmental structures in place including in the United States, and therefore the response will be an ever more sophisticated police state, of which you lay out the details in the book. Talk about the mechanisms that the global police state is using to maintain control, and you refer of course to I.T. and everything else, but talk about what we're seeing rising up to respond to this growing inequality and suffering.

WR: Sure. Well, and I want to--yes, I'm going to go into that, but I also want to stress that what we're seeing, you know, in global police state is this convergence of global capitalism's political need for social control in the face of what is a real and a potential expansion of a global revolt, with its economic need to continue to make profit in the face of stagnation. So, there's so many different dimensions of global police state and we see for example these--privatized so that's not just the United States: there's over 200 private prisons now in the growing--they're growing very rapidly. We're seeing immigrant--the expansion of--an extension of immigrant attention and deportation regimes around the world; we're seeing the construction of border and containment walls, and there's a brand new report that came out after I wrote the book that there's 63 containment walls built in borders to keep out the oppressed refugees migrants, 63 new containment walls built around the world. We're seeing the extension of systems of mass surveillance and geo-tracking to control the movement of human beings and to repress human beings, and this is being, of course, this is heightened in the context of the pandemic.

We're seeing the--in every single mega city of the world, we're seeing militarized urban policing; we're seeing the extension of paramilitary armies, and private security forces being deployed all around the world, and of course that's a profit-making opportunity as well as a--as a mechanism of extended, you know, of repression. We're seeing the blurring of military and civilian forms of warfare and of social control, and increasingly the mega cities around the world are turning into active war zones in which you see a blurring of the boundaries between the corporate repression and corporate control and capitalist states.

So, you know, I can go on and on. These are some of the dimensions of global police state you know I would also add that--and you point--you pointed out at the beginning, this unprecedented inequality in global capitalist society and these inequalities can only be sustained through extreme violence and extreme militarization and repression, and so you have also these bogus wars on drugs and on terrorism. It has nothing to do with stopping drugs and has nothing to do with stopping terrorism, and the US State is the biggest terrorist--purveyor of terrorism in the world. But they legitimate global police state but they also these wars on terrorism--so-called wars on terrorism, and on drugs, and on gangs, and on youth more generally, and on immigrants. These also have the result of dispossessing tens and hundreds of millions of more people and then open[ing] up their resources and their labor to exploitation by capital. So it's going to keep on coming back to how the--how the accumulation of capital and profit making by a tiny corporate elite worldwide converges with this political need for social control to contain mass revolt from below.

CH: You also...

WR: And, by the way, and Chris, I just want to mention also that, at some point, I would love to go over just some of the shocking data on the extent to which global police state is so massively profitable.

CH: Yeah. I want to do that. I want to talk first about this point you make in the book of how this is really supranational.

WR: Yes. Yeah, I mean, I think it's a big mistake for us to think in terms of the nation state when we talk about these issues. I mean, here in the United States, we have 30 million people taking to the streets in the wake of the police murder of George--of George Floyd, and of course those people faced, you know, head-on, faced this new global police state. But we want to think about this and every country in the world in every corner of the world and that, just as I was saying, that civilian and military dimensions of global police state and repression are becoming blurred. The same thing is that--is that war--there's no longer--these--there's no longer wars and conflicts in the confines of nation states: we need to see this as transnational struggles, transnational conflict, transnational repression, you know. Another example is that we have private military firms, now have at least - when I finished the book and this is expanding - 15 million soldiers work for private military firms for profit, and states all around the world are employing these private military firms. So they were in Standing Rock you know - a private military company - they're now going up to Enbridge but these same private military...

CH: Right.

WR: ...firms are in Iraq and in the Middle East; they're in Latin America; they're in Southern Africa; they're all around the world. We have 20 million private police in the world; again these are corporations that are doing this for profit, more private police than there are public police, and these are being deployed in Portland, and in Standing Rock, and now where Enbridge is being constructed, but also all around the world. So these corporations, they are hired all around the world; we can't think of them as you know, as national, and we can't think of global police state as national.

There's much more to discuss if you ask, you know, how is this transnational is that transnational capital goes into Mexico or Central America to seize resources, disrupt people, displace them from the land and that so they're repressed inside Central America by police and military forces, both private and public, but then they migrate to the United States because they've been dispossessed and they're refugees and here in the United States they say--face the same public and private military and security forces and systems of repression. So absolutely we--that's why the, you know, the title of the book is not Police State but Global Police State.

CH: Well, I was stopped at Standing Rock by one of these private sort of mercenary forces and what was so unsettling is they had set up a roadblock; they were dressed in black with Kevlar, with long-barreled weapons, but they had no identification at all on their uniforms.

WR: Right.

CH: They demanded all of my credentials and yet they refused my request to identify themselves, and so there's--what you're building is not just a global police force, you're building global mercenary units that are completely unaccountable.

WR: Yeah. Corporate warriors.

CH: Right.

WR: Serving capital.

CH: Great. When we come back, we'll continue our conversation about the global police state with Professor William Robinson.

Welcome back to On Contact. We continue our conversation about the rise of the global police state with Professor William Robinson. So we were talking before about the transnational aspect of the global police state. This is because, of course, capital has become transnational. These large corporations have no loyalty to any particular country including our own. And yet they, as you point out in the book, they need the nation state. What is the relationship between the nation state and these global entities?

WR: Sure. Well, I mean, this goes--I'm not going to go into a lot of detail here, but I've been writing about global capitalism in the nation state for now 25, 30 years and Global Police State is simply an extension of that, you know, that larger story. And while capital moves about the world in an attempt to seize resources, open up new profit, making opportunities and, in the process, repress any resistance, they--capital--this nation state has been serving global capital ever since globalization was launched in the late 20th Century.

So what the nation state does is it takes the global police state and imposes it at the nation state level and carries out that repressive function for global--for global capital, that social control function. But secondly, the nation state also--and you are--you know, this is your--you've written so much about this - imposes neoliberalism, and austerity, and de-regulation, and everything necessary for global capital to be able to exploit resources and labor forces and take over national economies. So again, these two come together and just to summarize, you know, response to your question is that the nation state carries out these two key functions of opening up opportunities for profit making inside each country and guaranteeing that social control function in each country, but all of that is done in function of the interest of global capitalism. So the capitalist state these days is simply an instrument of what I call the transnational capitalist class or global capital.

CH: You open the book by quoting this novel by Liza Elliott Everything Is Known. I think you do that on purpose because you're kind of projecting where we're going. This is a kind of dystopian novel about the future. I want to first ask about China, to what extent China is a model for social control with face recognition and, you know, even this thing you talk about where people get points for being good and demerits for being bad and talk a little bit about that, and then tell us about the size, you know, run through some of these statistics which are truly staggering, but let's first talk about where they're headed. Because as the disparities go and the suffering grows, I think your argument is that this kind of draconian form of control is just going to get more and more pronounced.

WR: Yeah. You know, so China is very revealing because as China has moved into the center of the global economy and, you know, if we look at--I only talk about the global economy because we can't box it off into nation states but if we did look at, you know, say, national economies, China will displace the United States in the next couple of decades as the biggest national economy. And as that does so, China is more--it's becoming more advanced than the United States in terms of technological sophistication and forms of organizing capitalism and that's a whole discussion in itself.

But so we see--we look at China, we see a mirror of the future for the whole world. And so China, in many respects actually has--is developing more sophisticated systems of repression and social control, is really in the front mind. You mentioned facial recognition but across the board, there's--China is much more advanced in using--I mean, we all carry around cell phones and we all go on the internet. And I think the figure now is 60%, 70% of the world's population is now connected and that's going to go up to close to a hundred percent in the next few years.

But China is really even more advanced than the United States in using our connection to our cell phones for, you know, total totalitarian social control and, you know, I think it's, you know, it's a myth that China is an alternative to global capitalism. It might be a different type of capitalism than we have in the United States but it's fully integrated into global capitalism. And in many ways, again, it's leading--it's leading the way in the new technologies of global police state and, you know, one hands-one example also, like, you know, I want to point out is that China has its--as Chinese corporations and capitalists including state capitalists have spread around the world, they've deployed global police state in new ways -- actually, I mean, you know, it can teach things at this point to the United States and in Ecuador. There's a particular example that I mentioned in the book that they opened up mines deep in the Amazon by displacing, you know, militarily and displacing the indigenous in these Amazonian territories with the help, of course, of the Ecuadorian state. And, you know, the systems--the sophistication of the systems of military and surveillance control on these indigenous populations is just really unmatched, you know, so I think that's the significance of China here.

And China together with Israel and the United States are, you know, massive exporters of these technologies and I think Chinese is going to--China at this point is behind Israel in terms of exporting this so-called homeland security systems but I think they're going to take over in the--in the--in the future.

CH: Let's talk about, number one, these systems. And number two, the size of this global policing apparatus.

WR: Right. Well, look at this. Well, 2001 of course was a turning point, the events of 2001 because they legitimated this much more sweeping militarization of the global economy and society and really moved us fully into a global war economy and we're still, of course, in that global war economy but the Pentagon budget increased between 1998 and 2011 by 98%. It nearly doubled and worldwide official government spending, military spending, increased by 50% between 2006 and 2015. Of course, that includes China: we were just talking about China, currently official spending is moving towards $3 trillion which is more than three percent of the whole global world product, but that doesn't include secret budgets; it doesn't include police budgets; it doesn't include homeland secure--so-called homeland security budgets. When you do that my calculation is that just this military and repression spending is five to six percent of the entire global economy.

In addition, there's a--there's a merging global market for what's called Homeland Security. That's a euphemism, of course, which currently is valued at $500 billion but is expected to rise in the next few years to trillions of--trillions of dollars. You know, I'm just looking here for this very dramatic quote that the other thing--another dimension of this is that as global revolt spreads and it's inevitable--it's already spreading and it's going to get much more intense during the pandemic and after the pandemic. So Lloyd's of London, which you know is this massive global financial conglomerate, issued this report and the report, just let me read this one: "Instances of political violence contagion are becoming more frequent and headed towards what it calls PV pandemics, political violence pandemics. Super strains of PC--PV include anti-imperialist and independence movements, social movements calling for the removal of an occupying force. Mass pro-reform protests against national governments and austerity. Armed insurrections inspired by Marxism."

And then it goes on but here's the key conclusion of this report. It says that then there is this vast market opening up worldwide for what it calls riot contagion systems, and this will be worth trillions of dollars in the future. So I'm, you know, we can go on and on but this is really an inflection point. This is a new stage in global capitalist repression in the face of a--of the revolt.

There's, you know, there's another thing in the book: I quote a number of representatives of what I call the transnational capitalist class, and they're expressing how deeply fearful they are of this global revolt and they're expressing how they want to rely on global police state and they need to. Just, you know, one of the number of dramatic quotes here that John Rupert, he's the CEO of Cartier which, together with Tiffany's, are the two biggest elite jewellery, you know, companies. He said in an interview a couple years ago, look, I haven't been able to get to sleep at night in years now because I'm worried about the prospects of the--of the poor rising up. It keeps me awake at night. And then he added I'm also worried that this global revolt is going to scare the elite into not buying the jewellery because if they put it on them, they'll appear ostentatious, you know, in the face of, you know, resistance from below. So, I mean, there's so much more here but this is, you know, some of--some of these dimensions.

CH: Let's just run through some of the tools which you mentioned in the book. The level of sophistication, the ability to create profiles on all of us is something unseen in human history. You take very advanced police states like the Stasi state in East Germany. They didn't come close to what they can do now. And just lay out how intrusive these systems of internal surveillance and control are.

WR: Yeah. You know, and this also--this also, you know, and to segue into responding to that, we want to remember that Silicon Valley is so--is at the very core of global police state. And what I and others have referred to as fourth industrial revolution technologies which includes, of course, artificial intelligence. It includes robotization, nanotechnology, biotechnology, 3D printing and, you know, there's all of these new cutting edge technologies just coming online now. And they are being developed in large part in order to develop--in order to beef up and bring to a new level global police state. And our smartphones now are--means that we are monitored in every bit of the--every bit of movement and in every single thing we do and that is not new. I didn't come up with that fact, but it is now spreading to the entire planet. And one of the things going on and this is being intensified with the pandemic, is what's called geo-fencing. So geo-fencing was actually first introduced to control cattle, on giant ranches, and so they're plugged in, you know, put in the cattle this tiny little chip. And then from a computer terminal which could be 6,000 miles away, you monitor where the cattle are moving. And once they leave the grazing zone, you can quickly mobilize people on the ground to get them back into the proper grazing zone. And so that's called geo-fencing.

And now geo-fencing is being applied through our smartphones, so that when people in inner cities or that are supposed to not be moving around or the--or that the police state needs to control, when they move out of their particular zone, you'll instantly mobilize a more intense surveillance of them, and you ready actual police and military forces to move in. The other thing is every single--every single movement and every single communication on the planet can now be--can now be monitored 24/7.

There's something else going on. I mean, there's too much to even to get in here in the brief interview is what I call global green zoning and global gray zoning. If I have just a minute to quickly throw this out: when the US invaded Iraq in 2003, they set up in the center of Iraq and I know, you know, you know all of this - they set up what they call the green zone. Inside that green zone, they have impenetrable barriers. You couldn't get in, you couldn't get out. Even, you know, big bombs couldn't even bring down the green zone. Inside was the US military and political occupation forces and the new Iraqi elite cultivated and brought to power by that invasion. Outside was the gray zone where it's this massive immiseration, daily warfare and destruction, and death. And so you have these two different worlds separated by these barriers.

Now what we're seeing is worldwide in the world's mega cities, we're seeing green zoning and gray zoning, so the elite, that, you know, 20% of humanity that has 95% of the world's wealth, are being green zoned, and these massive new sophistications of social control protect them inside the green zones, and then they're applied to those outside the green zones, in the gray zones and the zones of warfare. So we have this new global spatial parties. We see the restructuring of space all around the world in function of social control and protection of the rich and the--and the powerful. And all of that depends on these new technologies that have been developed by Silicon Valley.

So, you know, just to conclude, we're seeing a coming together really of these three fat groups of capital. We're seeing the tech capital which is now the cutting edge of the global economy, especially with the pandemic. They come together with the--with the military industrial security complex. And then they come together in turn with the global financial conglomerates, and the triangulation of the three is really the leading edge now of global capitalism, the leading edge of these systems of repression and control and of global police state.

CH: Great. Thank you very much. That was sociology professor William Robinson about his new book, The Global Police State.

WR: Thank you so much for having me on.

2021-03-31 A Message to Lightworkers – March 31, 2021 by Caroline Oceana Ryan

This week's guidance from the Ascended Masters, Galactics, Earth Elements, Fae Elders, Angelic legions, and Archangels known as the Collective:

Greetings, dear ones! We are very pleased to have this chance to speak with you today.

We see many of you moving out of the fear and stress that the media often wishes to inject into your energies, preferring instead to determine your own realities of a Peaceful and heart-centered life that is not deterred from its path of service to the Light.

This is a very beautiful moment for those of us who are assisting humanity at this time, as you reach for ever higher levels of understanding and consciousness of your own Divinity, your own in-born beauty, power, and presence.

Today we answer a reader who has requested that we offer "our perspective on the Covid pandemic, the variants of it, and thoughts on a possible outcome and completion of it."

Our perspective is that the plan to create this and other difficult issues for humanity was launched some time ago, along with the accompanying agenda of supposed preventative measures which, like the illness itself, are falsely created, and do not spring from a place of holistic capability, nor a desire for the healing and well-being of the human race.

We do not place great focus on either plan, as they were created in shadow, and deserve no one's great attention, save those assisting those who are ill, and those who will deal with the "ringleaders" of those plans, as you may call them, in international and intergalactic courts of Justice.

We do not wish to alarm those who may have thus far flowed with the current plan promised by authority figures to ensure safety and wellness.

Concentrate on your higher path, dear ones, and you will be led to both healing and renewed life on all levels, regardless of choices and circumstances made thus far.

Yet we would call this illness, which is an imbalance more than anything else, and curable by natural means, a decisive moment for Light Bringers of all shapes and colors, all over the planet.

In this moment on Earth, you have been placed where you must decide several things: whether to remain on the Earth for now, to experience this illness yet overcome it, or to experience it from afar, experiencing the losses of your own or others' loved ones, yet remaining untouched by it physically.

And now you face part 2 of their plan, which is to allow what some are simply calling "the jab," or to refuse such.

Understand that all of this is of your own choosing, dear ones.

That on a higher level, you have already decided whether you will remain or move on, and what you will experience, and how much of it.

Yes, this can be revised or rewritten, as all matters in your life chart on this free will planet.

Yet for most, you have already decided whether you will accept the mainstream media / mainstream medical interpretation of events, or whether you will mainly weigh matters for yourself, arming yourself with knowledge from those you intuitively trust, and the guidance of your Spirit team, and calling on Divine Wisdom for the wisest course of action and understanding.

This moment you are experiencing now is part of the increased sovereignty you have been claiming for decades—a process which actually began several centuries ago, and in some ways, several millennia ago.

So that, far from being broadsided by these pressures, events, and influences—far from seeing life spin out of control—you are now exactly where you realized you would be, upon deciding to incarnate at this moment on your planet's timeline.

This is a new timeline, so be aware of such.

Be aware that the machinations of those who create illnesses and disorders so as to profit from them and reduce population do not outrun or outreach the quiet power of all those who have helped move Earth and Her people onto this new timeline.

That timeline, which has waited through a very long era to present a particular course of events, is snowballing quickly now, leading to humanity freeing itself from a dark grip it long ago assented to experience.

As they say, "Time's up" for such experimentation, and regarding, as this one Light Bringer asks, "outcome and completion," we would say that is far closer than you may be assuming.

Remember that there are astrological influences bringing energies to the planet that are not only very freeing to those who are in the majority, but which are requiring consciousness to open up to where even the darkest of plans are being pushed to one side, then dissolved.

As that occurs, the determinative higher consciousness quality of human thought and emotion is co-Creating an entirely different path than the one you were once intentionally forced onto by those not valuing or honoring your free will, or your life force energies.

They have badly underestimated the power of these, even now, as they receive one warning after another that their rule is ended, yet choose to disregard and scoff at the idea.

Do not stress over “variants” and such—view them as extensions of the original dark plan, which as we say, you have chosen to void and dissolve from your energies and experience.

What the shadow realm wishes for you to believe, and has gone to great trouble to impress upon you, is the idea that “this is the only reality that exists for you—the restrictive, endangering, Earth-wrecking, destructive one we have created for you. Of course it would be nice if life would act otherwise, but you have to deal with what we give you.”

And of course, that is an utter lie.

You are all of you co-Creating, self-determining agents of Change on this planet, and first and foremost, in your own life, and this entire situation of illness and seclusion has been an elaborate way of showing you that.

And so now you will say, “I prefer not to learn things in the context of so much death and suffering!”

To which we will say, Excellent! That determination was needed to turn the tide once and for all in Earth life.

Your heart preference and therefore, your vibration, is pulling Earth off an old timeline headed for utter destruction and onto the new one headed for an active co-Creation of Abundance, Peace, Equality, and Freedom in all its highest forms.

Though we are fully engaged in Earth life, and work with all who call upon us to enact healing, progression, and increased Knowing of the higher levels of experience and Divine Love, we cannot do the most important work for you.

That you are committed to now through your own determination to keep your vibration as high as possible throughout the day, and to seek encouragement and stillness in the presence of your own higher self, soul family, and all Divine Beings you most happily draw to as channels of Wisdom, stillness, and Knowing.

You cannot be deterred from your path, dear ones, once you have decided in favor of Joy and positive co-Creation of Earth life in new higher forms!

Make this determination now, in your Earth body, as you once did before incarnating.

You might wish to say aloud now:

Yes, I AM here to assist in the Ascension of this planet, and in the freeing of Her peoples.

I begin now with the enlightening of my own heart-mind, and the raising of every particle of energy in my vibration.

I choose Love. I choose Life. I move forward with whatever courage I can gather.

And I sing to the New Earth, full of Joy at the Knowing that All Is Well, and shall ever be well.

And so it is!

We do not doubt you, dear ones—do not doubt your resolve, your inner strength even on the days when weakness rises to the surface to be released.

This too is victory, so allow the tears to flow when they must, whether for yourself or another.

You are already that part of the New Earth symphony without which little else would matter.

And so as always, dear ones, we thank you for your beautiful service to your Earth at this time, and welcome you into that higher vibrational life you have long desired to experience.

Namaste, friends who are family! You are never alone.
